"Reminiscing"

Gee! How I do miss the old iron monster of years gone by.

The chugging steam locomotives pulling long strings of freight cars, and the speeding passenger trains. They both interested me, and I am of the opinion that there are others that feel the same way. When my brother was alive long before the First World War we used to sit along the New York Central right-of-way near Amherst, Ohio, and watch the trains go by, and make note of the many different railroad cars. Many times in summer or winter, we would go down to the Nickel Plate R. R. tracks near Lake Erie and see the trains go by there. When our family was still living at Bluestone, Ohio previous to 1905, we boys got a big kick in watching the big stacked Nickel Plate engine pull several cars of stone up a grade, and there were times when we had to run for shelter on account of the hot cinders.

Well, I am happy in the thought that I was able to ride behind the iron horses while there was time.

Hello! Everybody!

As my Print Shop story came to an end in the No. 15 issue of Home Shop Printers, I will have to figure out something else, and so here goes. -----

What is the point and name of this type? Of course that I know, but I would like to find out how others make out.

This is Tuesday afternoon on August the 8th. and it is fair and nice out. Decided to set up this form for issue No. 16, as it wont be long until Sept.

During my rambles around town I pass out quite a lot of printed matter such as jokes, funny stories, etc. Occasionally an order comes around and if I can do it, I'll take it.

EXCURSIONS & ALAURMS

Fault Finding Guests

By Herb Harnish

f any Russian ever went home and allowed himself to be quoted in Pradva as saying, ". . . the Americans have a great country. They treated us like kings and did everything to make our stay pleasant," the Russo so speaking would not only amaze all Americans but would also be drummed out of the party and shot before breakfast for spouting such unrealistic propaganda. The Russians come to this country like the cartoon mother-in-law, not to find out what's right with the man her offspring married, but to seek out his faults.

When they do come over here, they are usually as welcome as distant relatives at the reading of a will. After being wined and dined, they go home and, to a man, start complaining about our decaydent manners, food, drink, et cetera to the luckey comrades who had to remain at home to fulfill their work norm for the party.

How does one explain away the 1000 defectors per day into West Berlin?

It would seem some of the Russians, who have come in contact with our decaying republic kinda like the smell, & while they can, are availing themselves of the oppourtunity to breath some of the pungent aroma of good old "FREE" capitalistic type air.

The Russians just don't give anyone a chance to think of them as brother human beings.

Several years ago I read an article about John Fass, proprietor of the Hammer Creek Press, which was illustrated with samples of his work. Among these were several where the border Granjon's Arabesque was used. I felt then, and I still feel now that this is the most beautiful border that I have ever seen. Q Owning it was just a dream until I saw it used in Small World by A. L. Shearn, proprietor of the Ember Press. I wrote to Mr. Shearn & he told me where I could buy this border. It is made by Vendall and Company Limited, Typefounders of Risca, Monmouthshire, England. Here are some of its combinations. Q Harold Faust, 2755 Reservoir Ave., Bronx 68, New York

Remember Way Back When ?

It was considered a great Saturday afternoon pastime going down to meet all the trains at the station? There was a fascination about a steam locomotive never found in modern diesel engines.

Ha! FUNNIES IN WORDS Ha!

ALL NIGHT SERVICE

Passing a cemetery in the wee hours of the morning, a drunk noticed a sign which read, "Ring the bell for the caretaker." He did just that, and a sleepy eyed man came to the door. "What do you want?" asked the man. "I want to know why you can't ring the damn bell yourself."

SCHOOL TEACHER SAYS

A friend was complaining to Sam Levenson about the way teenage girls dress today.

Friend: My daughter's been pestering me to let her wear a strapless evening gown to the school dance," he said. "But I don't think she's old enough."

Sam -chuckling- Listen-- if it stays up she's old enough.

CASH ON THE BARREL HEAD

The beggar asked the man who was passing by for a coin. "I'm sorry but I've no change now." said the man, "but I'll let you have something on my way back." he promised. "I'm afraid that's no use." replied the beggar," you'd be surprised how much I've lost giving credit that way."

IT'S IMMODEST

A Teen-age romance was recently shattered when the boy friend became a bronzed life-guard at a local swimming pool. The girl explained to her mother, "I can't stand a guy who admires his figure more than he does mine!"

SOME MORE LAUGHS

A man went into an ice cream parlor and asked the girl for a sundae. She said to him, we have twelve different flavors, which one do you want? Said the man, give me a little of all twelve of them. Thank You!

"THAT'S AWFUL"

Psychiatrist: Now tell me about this dream you had. Lady Patient: Well, I dreamed I was walking down the street with nothing on but a hat. Psychiatrist: And you were embarrassed! Lady Patient: I certainly was! It was last year's hat.

A little tot, in church for the first time, watched the ushers pass the collection plates. When they neared the pew, he piped up so everyone could hear, "Don't pay for me, Daddy, I'm under five."

Two little flies were strolling along the ceiling of a New York penthouse. "You know," said the first fly, "people are so silly."

"How do you figure that?" The little fly shrugged his wings. "Just take a look," he said. "They spend good money on a nice high ceiling, and then what do they do but walk along the floor."

A drunk was passing a store when he noticed the sign on the door which read, "Closed" he looked at it a couple minutes, then he said out loud, "Even a sober man can see that the door is shut.

That is all for this time. Did you enjoy it all?

HERB HARNISH sends pages for two issues AND covers for #20. Many thanks, Herb. You sure do help to keep H.S.P. healthy!

HAROLD FAUST has agreed to print covers for #17. ELVIN BROWN has donated nice Cover Stock for a future issue.

This type is old and perhaps too small. But it is the only type I have enough of. It is 8 point—Caslon, I think.

I (Ray H.) received a very friendly letter from J. L. Alexander, identifying monotypes in my APA specimen sheet and expressing interest in H.S.P. I hope he will join us when he retires from newspaper work, soon.

I also received a letter from Lee Cressman complimenting HSP and asking how to join in it's publication. We will be very glad to welcome him, also.
